

Text Message Analysis

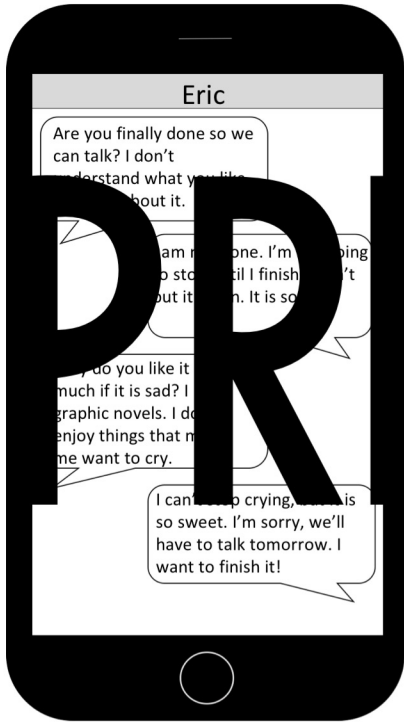

1. How do the two people in the conversation know each other? _____
2. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____
3. What happened before the conversation took place? _____
4. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____
5. What conclusion can you draw about one person in the conversation? _____
6. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____

1. How do the two people in the conversation know each other? _____
2. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____
3. What happened before the conversation took place? _____
4. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____
5. What conclusion can you draw about one person in the conversation? _____
6. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. _____

Text Message Analysis

1. How do the two people in the conversation know each other? They are friends.
2. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "Are you finally done so we can talk?"
3. What happened before the conversation took place? The message recipient told Eric they were too busy reading to talk.
Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "I'm sorry, I have to stop until I finish. I don't want to talk tomorrow. I want to finish it!"
4. What conclusion can you draw about the person in the conversation? The message recipient is reading a sad book.
5. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "I can't stop crying, but it is so sweet."

1. How do the two people in the conversation know each other? They are classmates.
2. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "And bring some to school tomorrow."
3. What happened before the conversation took place? Rachel's grandmother gave her homemade treats.
Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "It was just so sweet. My grandma told me to make those for me."
4. What conclusion can you draw about the person in the conversation? The message recipient wants some of what Rachel's grandmother made.
5. Cite evidence from the text that supports your answer to the previous question. "You have to stop and save some for me."